The Maine History Festival
Friday, May 31, 2019 • 2:30 - 4:30 p.m.
Hudson Museum, Collins Center for the Arts
University of Maine, Orono

What is the Maine History Festival?
The Maine History Festival is for students and non-academics to share their research in an informal setting as part of the Bicentennial Conference. The Festival is free, open to the public, and includes a reception. After the Festival, we hope that everyone will join us at the Keynote with two Pulitzer Prize winning historians. The Keynote is also free and open to the public.

The Festival will have concurrent poster-session style presentations and table displays by students and community groups in the large lobby and gallery space of the Collins Center for the Arts at the University of Maine. Informal one-on-one exchanges at the Festival aim to foster collaboration across boundaries, stimulate new thinking about the statehood process and state commemoration, and encourage revision and further development for presenters to share their understanding of the Maine statehood era and Maine history more broadly in the 2020 bicentennial year.
